

CPD Accredited - Introduction to the Protection of Cultural Venues

Enniskillen Castle 30th July 2026

A cultural protection training programme aimed at anyone and everyone working in cultural venues across the island of Ireland

Book Here

This 1-day programme enables delegates to understand the threats that exist within the cultural sector, how they manifest themselves, and the steps that can be taken to reduce the risks being faced.

The programme is structured to enable delegates to understand what can adversely impact their venues, and enable a proactive approach to be taken to reduce the risk of loss, harm or damage. (Details on page two)

CPD Accredited - Introduction to the Protection of Cultural Venues

Understanding Adversarial Threats

Cultural venues are exposed to a wide range of threats. Understanding the threats that exist helps determine the exposure to risk that can impact venues and their collections.

Attack Methodologies

Adversarial attacks do not just happen! There are normally different stages that happen before, during, and after any attack. Understanding this process allows proactive actions that reduce the risk of loss, harm or damage.

Situational Awareness

This is an important life skill that helps identify potentially harmful situations by increasing levels of awareness of the surroundings and increasing vigilance if suspicious activity is seen. Good situational awareness enables proactive actions to be taken.

Surveillance Detection

Adversaries will undertake hostile surveillance during different phases of an attack. Being able to identify surveillance characteristics can lead to proactive, disruptive actions being taken.

Effective Operational Practices

Delegates will understand the importance of effective operational practices, the best practices to adopt at their venue, and why they should be considered to ensure cultural assets are kept safe and secure.
